Notice

Barnstormers who want to see the first plays must pay their dues at once as the time before the play is short. Anyone who joined the association last year and has not received a bill this year will please send her name to Miss Agnes Park as soon as possible.

1862—1912

Married in Andover, November 27, 1862, Jefferson Kimball Cole and Annie Gertrude Poor.

Mr. and Mrs. Poor will be pleased to receive their relatives and friends on the afternoon of Wednesday, November 27, 1912, from 3 o'clock until 5:30 at their home, 19 School Street, Peabody, Mass.

Clean Plays for Children

There will be found on another page notice of "The Children's Players," the organization which is making an effort to bring about the presentation of clean plays for children. In order that children may be given an opportunity to see the plays for the small sum of ten cents, they will first be given to an audience paying the usual prices, the proceeds from the first performance to be used to pay for the second.

Local Firm Dissolved

Announcement is made that the firm of Buxton & Coleman, electricians on Park street, has been dissolved owing to the retirement of Ira Buxton. Walter H. Coleman, the other member of the firm will carry on the business in the Park street quarters as heretofore under the name of W. H. Coleman & Co., and the present force of employees will be retained.

Mr. Buxton has not yet made any announcement regarding his plans.

Progress of the School Bank

The following figures concerning the school bank which have been prepared by the superintendent of schools for the use of the bank commissioners are of no small interest to the public. The school bank in which children may deposit through their teachers and the superintendent any amount they wish, no matter how small, was started on January 12, 1912, and met with instant success. The children were enthusiastic from the beginning and their interest has not waned as the monthly reports give evidence.

Since the inception of the bank, the number of deposits which were made up to October 31, was 7137. The amount of money in these deposits was $2,275.50. The total amount transferred to private accounts (such transfer being allowed after a total of three dollars has been deposited) was $1,618.12. The amount permanently withdrawn was $111.75.

These figures would seem to indicate that there has been, during the past months, a decided increase in the spirit of thrift and saving among the school children, a spirit, the cultivation of which should be no insignificant part of present day education.

ATTRACTIONS AT THE THEATRES

BOSTON THEATRES

New Attractions

Boston—"My Best Girl."
Colonial—"The Enchantress."
Majestic—"The Merry Widow."
Tremont—"The Rainbow."
Castle Sq—"Madame X."

Continuing Attractions

Hollis St—"The Concert."
Shubert—"Broadway to Paris."
Plymouth—"Disraeli."
Park—"Maggie Pepper."

COLONIAL

"The Enchantress," with Kitty Gordon in the title role, is being given for the first time in Boston at the Colonial theatre. The play centers around the king of the mythical realm of Zergovia, who was willing to wreck his kingdom on account of his affection for an opera singer. The story is entertaining and the music of a higher type than is ordinarily heard in comic opera.

TREMONT

Henry Miller has brought another treat to the Boston stage in "The Rainbow," a decidedly different play than anything he has done here before. It is strong and charming in theme and well presented, so that it is meeting with a merited success.

CASTLE SQUARE

The Castle Square stock company are appearing this week in "Madame X," with Mary Young in the title role. As the woman who returns to her native land and is placed on trial for her life, Miss Young does excellent work. Donald Meek is also much appreciated in his acting in the part of the woman's son who, not knowing that she is his mother, defends her at the trial.

HOLLIS STREET

"The Concert" is a return engagement at the Hollis Street theatre, and is meeting with the same approval and success as it had a year ago. The piece is not only a breezy musical comedy, but it is doubly pleasing and entertaining because it affords so interesting a peep into the inner circles of the musical world.

SHUBERT

Gertrude Hoffman and her excellent company are on the last week of their engagement in the production of "Broadway to Paris," at the Shubert theatre, and large audiences are taking advantage of the last opportunities to see this entertaining show. Next week will come the "Passing Show of 1912," containing burlesques on the current theatrical successes.

PARK

Rose Stahl in Charles Klein's department store comedy continues as the one big hit of the season in Boston, where it has been attracting large audiences since Labor Day. There are matinees on Wednesday and Saturday and an extra matinee on Thanksgiving Day. The engagement at the Park theatre will be the only one which Miss Stahl will play in New England, and that is limited as contracts already made cannot be postponed. So out-of-town playgoers should witness the play at the earliest possible moment. Miss Stahl has scored a success in Boston which equals that registered in other large cities and there has been no play produced either in New York or Chicago this season which excels her in the length of the present engagement.

"Maggie Pepper" is the story of a girl of the stores; it is full of the spirit of life and its main delight is the comedy which sparkles throughout the performance. The audience is kept in constant laughter from the beginning of the play until its end. But underneath the comedy there is a most appealing story of a woman's struggle for success; for her endeavor to protect a loved child from bad influences; for the ability of women kind to make a success where men, living under the archaic conditions of another day had failed. It is an inspiring play for the young and the old alike. Miss Stahl has never done finer work than as "Maggie Pepper"; and, in fact, her interpretation of the girl of the stores places her among our foremost players for all time. There is no moment when the audience does not feel she is the character she represents and she wins and holds the sympathy and attention from first to last.

BOSTON

Clifton Crawford has scored an emphatic success in his new play, "My Best Girl," which is now being presented by the Henry B. Harris management at the Boston theatre. The engagement at the Boston is limited so that there will be few opportunities to see Mr. Crawford in his best play in years. The matinees are on Wednesday and Saturday.

"My Best Girl" tells a pretty love story sufficient to weave together the melodies which Mr. Crawford and Augustus Barratt have composed for it. It has some of the best music of the popular sort heard in Boston this season and many of the melodies will doubtless become widely popular.

The Henry B. Harris management have surrounded Mr. Crawford with an exceptional cast. The star himself has the best part he has ever created. In it he has opportunity to sing and dance and be merry after his wont, and there is no comedian on our stage who can amuse and entertain better than Mr. Crawford. There are two settings, the first an automobile salesroom and the second Colonel's Row on Governor's Island, New York. Both are excellent specimens of scenic art. Sydney Ellison, stage manager for Geo. Edwards' Gaiety theatre in London, was brought to this country especially to stage the production and he has devised many novel and unusual stage effects.

The Children's Players

"The Naughty Little Princess"—a German fairy play for children—the Women's Educational and Industrial Union announces is to be presented for the first time in English on November 20, the Friday after Thanksgiving, at the Shubert theatre. The actors are a group of young men and women chosen from the leading members of the dramatic clubs of Boston and vicinity and are known as "The Children's Players."

The plot of "The Naughty Little Princess" is such a one as you will find if you take down your battered Grimm and let it open at the place where as a child you read it most, that enthralling kind of fairy tale. A prince in disguise appears at just the right moment. There are, of course, an ogre, hobgoblins and absorbing adventures in the enchanted wood, beginning in the era known as "once upon a time" and ending happily.

The executive committee for "The Children's Players" is as follows: Miss Bertha E. Mahoney, chairman; Munroe Rhodes Pevcar, stage manager; Miss Emilie Everett, assistant stage manager; Richard K. Conant, business manager; Miss Eleanor West, costumer; Mrs. Renton Whidden, Miss Florence Lincoln, Miss Harriet Teal, Miss Caroline Freeman is directing the play; Miss Alice B. Diaz has arranged the dancing; and Charles B. Roepper, the music.

"THE DURBAR"

At Tremont Temple, Monday evening, November 18th, "The Durbar in Kinemacolor" will be revived—this time with a practically new program. Only the actual coronation of King George and Queen Mary as Emperor and Empress of India will be retained. The other reels have never been shown in Boston. Among these wholly new episodes of the Durbar are "The Unveiling of the King Edward Memorial," "The Presentation of Colors," "The Royal Visit to Kabab Minor," "The Calcutta Races for the Viceroy's Cup," "The State Entry through the Elephant Gate of Delhi," "The Arrival of Princes Ghat, Calcutta," "The Muhurram Procession and Festival" and "The State Departure from Calcutta." The royal review of 50,000 troops will again be shown.

The speaker will again be Mr. Edward Freiberg, whose lecture on the Durbar was heard at Tremont Temple earlier in the season.

"The Virginian."

"Little Boy Blue"

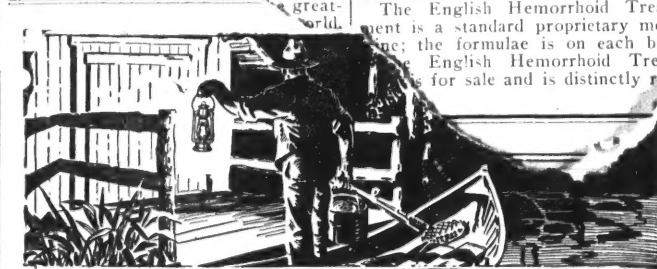

The French-Scottish operetta, "Little Boy Blue," will be at the Colonial on Monday evening, November 18. The play has won great success wherever it has appeared. Miss Maude Odell in the leading role playing with wonderful effect the part of the Egyptian seeress.

"The Concert"

Leo Dietrichstein, who has the chief part in David Belasco's production of "The Concert," which will be seen at the Colonial November 26, has played the role 700 consecutive times. Mr. Dietrichstein is not only interested in his work as an actor, but he is doubly interested in the success of "The Concert," for he adapted the play from the German and has become identified with its great international success.

Ward and Vokes

Comedy of the highest published original songs, bright music in that dances, wit and repartee, the former up to date, are the promise Eastern forth at the Colonial, Saturday, November 23, when the "of their dears and fun makers, herefor, and Vokes, will be seen in comedy. Membership Campaign for Sons of Veterans Camp

Camp No. 111, Sons of Veterans, met in regular session last Friday evening, Commander Eastman in the chair. Only routine business was transacted. In the hope of increasing the membership in the Camp, a campaign of education was decided upon, to bring before the principles and needs of the Camp. Lectures and addresses by men prominent in G. A. R. and military circles will be given during the coming winter, so which all eligibles will be especially invited, in the hope that after we have led the horse to water, he will be so thirsty, he will want to drink.

"One hundred new members by May first, 1913," will be the slogan. Keep your eye on Camp No. 111 and watch it grow.

Now, all you eligibles, who are not ashamed of your fathers' records, and if you are we forgive you, come and help us to help them.

EIGHT STRAIGHT FOR ANDOVER

Largest Crowd in History of Contest Sees Andover Defeat Exeter by the Score of 7 to 0

The record made by the Phillips Academy football team, that of defeating Exeter for eight consecutive years, is one of which alumni, students, and townspeople justly feel proud. Since 1905 when Captain H. H. Hobbs' team took Exeter into camp by the score of 28 to 0, down through the years of Captains Daly, Merritt, Coates, Large, Rogers and Van Brocklin, Andover has never felt the sting of defeat, and the name of Captain Gault will now be added to the long list of illustrious captains who have upheld the proud tradition of the school.

The game last Saturday, from a spectator's point of view, was extremely close and exciting. The two teams battled back and forth on the field with neither apparently having advantage over the other until towards the end of the second period, a cleverly executed forward pass gave Andover the six points for which she had been hoping. A minute later Wiley kicked the goal and the scoring for the day was ended.

The play that gave Andover the game was one which the Andover men had been carefully practicing for the past week. It was about the only bit of spectacular playing seen through the entire game and when it worked successfully, the Andover supporters rent the air with their cheering and shouting. Hats, banners and megaphones were hurled towards the clouds and the stands fairly rocked with the excitement of the moment.

Exeter seemed stunned by the quick way in which the score was made. The team lined up in the regular kicking formation, Nielsen going back of the line to receive the pass. When the word was given the ball was snapped to Thompson instead. He then threw to Murray on a delayed pass and he, taking deliberate aim, sent the ball over the heads of the Exeter players into the arms of Buckle. Only two men now stood in the way of the goal and victory. Casey, the star of the Exeter team, and Quigley, who was a disappointment for Exeter, tried vainly to get at the fleet Buckle, but he shook both off and raced for 20 yards behind the goal line. This play took Exeter completely by surprise, as they were unaware that Andover's forward pass was occasionally executed from the kicking formation.

On the other hand, every forward pass tried by Exeter was started from an open play formation and the Andover boys were always warned of what was coming. This appeared to be a great weakness in the coaching of the New Hampshire boys. Their trick plays were not covered up. Their opponents were fully prepared for their attack when the ball was snapped back.

Casey, the Exeter quarter, was easily the best man on that team and he ran the plays well. His backs, however, were unable to gain through Andover's stone-wall defense, and time and again they were thrown back for a loss. Luman at left tackle and Waite, who took Quigley's place at fullback, played well, the former breaking through time after time and stopping plays. Bolton was another good man in the Exeter line.

To give one Andover player more credit than the other would not seem entirely fair. Every man did his share of the work. There were no Mahans, but the team worked smoothly and at no position could Exeter find a weak spot. Then again conditions alter cases. Had the field been dry and hard, Andover would certainly have had an advantage. As it was, the heavy field made it impossible for fast men like Murray, Gould and Mooney to get a start. They slipped in the mud before they were under way and many times were on the ground when stopped by Exeter. Murray was a hard man to down. His squirming and dodging was the best of the game and he made many yards after he had apparently been stopped.

The kicking of Nielsen was most difficult for the Exeter backs to handle. His low, long twisters completely fooled the opposing team and very few yards were made on the run in. Not infrequently the Andover ends were waiting for the New Hampshire backs to pick up the ball, only to be tackled before they could start. Wiley was not so successful with his place-kicking, his three attempts having failed. One, early in the game, had accurate direction but lacked the required distance by about five yards.

The game clearly showed that strategy figured entirely in the scoring for Andover. When it was found that the Exeter defense could not be broken back, Quarterback Thompson very wisely resorted to a kicking game. This netted Andover many yards in the exchange of punts and when Andover secured the ball on Exeter's 30-yard line, good judgment was used in trying the forward pass which resulted in the score. This strategy was not of a day's making. It had been drilled into the team all during the season by Coach Lillard.

Exeter's team surely contained good material but it was evident that team work was lacking. The persistent efforts of the quarterback to send his backs into the Andover line when no ground could be gained, and the utter lack of control of the forward pass proved conclusively that something was missing from the making of a first class team. Only once was Exeter successful with the forward pass and this was a short one which netted ten yards. It may have been Andover's superiority in the defense, for every other effort to execute a pass was smeared by the Andover boys. Had Exeter been able to pull off this play more frequently the result might have been different. However, as it was impossible for the wearers of the red to do so, it left but one conclusion, the most finished, best-coached and hardest-working team won.

The wearers of the blue were penalized twice as against five times for Exeter, for offside play, holding and crawling. Referee Whiting seemed to have eyes everywhere, and the least bit of an infraction of the rules did not escape his notice.

Andover used nineteen men in the game and Exeter used sixteen, not because of injuries, however. Coach Lillard gave some of his men a rest in the third period, but sent them back into the game again, and they were refreshed and able to bolster up the defense in great style.

One of the most interesting features of the game was the fine cheering and singing by the supporters of both teams. Aided by the Andover Brass Band the Andover boys sang several songs and Exeter tried to outdo the combined efforts of the students and band when their turn came. The summary:

Choosing a United States Senator

It is not surprising that the entire state is pretty well aroused over the question of choosing a United States Senator. The office is an important one, and the man to be chosen will succeed a long line of distinguished Massachusetts statesmen, who, without exception, have brought honor to the Commonwealth and to the nation. It is not surprising in the light of the nation-wide agitation for a "voice of the people" that there should be many schemes set forth to bring about an expression of opinion as to what the voters want. Along this line are all sorts of suggestions designed to give to the voters at large the determination of who shall be the man chosen for this important position. But so far as we can learn the only suggestions that attract attention are those which would substitute for the existing condition of things, the unknown and untried.

Why should there be a change in the method that has worked so well for the last hundred years through a perfect application of the principle of representative government? What other issue was more prominent in the last campaign than the very issue of the United States Senatorship? The question of a direct primary on this particular issue had been fully discussed and settled by the legislature of 1912. Many of the men who voted against the direct primary at that time were candidates for reelection, and, so far as we can learn, not a single one of them suffered because of his attitude on the question, and in many cases those who voted against a direct primary were high men on the ballot. Because of this condition we cannot help feeling that the voters of Massachusetts have emphatically passed on the method of electing a United States Senator, and in that passing have approved the suggestion of leaving it entirely to the incoming Legislature.

A majority of the incoming Legislature are Republicans. They make up no narrow margin, but a strong working majority made up of some exceptional men who can be trusted to voice the opinions of their constituents as their predecessors have done for many years past. Already one of the most peculiar characters of the last Legislature who has been re-elected, Mr. Webster of Boxford, has introduced a bill calling for a direct primary previous to the election of United States Senator. It is a foolish and footless proposition. We personally cannot see what the Democrats have to do with the choice of a United States Senator in Massachusetts. A popular vote in Massachusetts has licked them on this particular issue with a rousing majority against them, and for the House and Senate that is to gather in January to attempt to shirk this responsibility would neither be creditable to them nor satisfactory to a great mass of the voters in the state. The public is pretty sick of political agitation; most of them are ready to settle down and see how things will shape up under new leaders and a different party control. Business demands a rest from politics, and so do most people. For Heaven's sake let's forego this suggested new agitation and leave the question of United States Senator to the men who have been entrusted with it by voters who were thoroughly informed and who are perfectly satisfied to let the old methods still maintain in Massachusetts, where they have for a century succeeded in giving to the state the best service secured in any state in the Union.

Massachusetts Railroad Service

To those who have followed the development of public service in Massachusetts during the last thirty years, the action of the Grand Trunk officials, and associated action by the New York, New Haven & Hartford officials is not at all surprising.

Public service in Massachusetts along the best lines has been developed in every case through a system of regulated monopoly. The Massachusetts Legislature last year granted rights to the Grand Trunk Railroad, after mistaken newspaper agitation and after an inflamed public mind had demanded something they did not know anything about. To fulfill its obligations incurred at that time, the Grand Trunk Railroad began work in several localities where there seemed to be need of a better developed railroad system. The work has gone on pretty rapidly, and has carried hope to many of those sections which expected that better public service would immediately follow. It is not surprising in the light of this, that a pretty loud howl arose when the announcement came that this development would be discontinued and work would be stopped. Rumors that deals had been made between the two great systems involved were easy to believe, and later developments have shown that the one thing aimed at by the Grand Trunk was such concessions as would give to them a right to enter various important terminals controlled by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

We cannot see why, through such concessions, there will not come to the service of the Commonwealth the improvement which is desired. We also cannot see why it isn't going to result in a development of the railroad service of Massachusetts along the right lines, because the next step is for such power to be given to the Railroad Commission as will allow them to say to the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad that they must do certain things to improve conditions.

There has been no more unfair campaign waged for many years in Massachusetts than the campaign which has succeeded in getting the present railroad system of the state by the throat. Fostered by the inflamed prejudices which red line newspapers can bring about, the public has been led to believe that the railroad service of the state is many times worse than it really is. Believing this, the public has been ready to endorse any kind of a scheme put before them to change conditions, and there is in process of organization and building at the present time in Massachusetts several different plans of railroad development, which, based upon the economic policy of public service, have no worthy right.

It is time for Massachusetts to take account of stock, and to realize that she has established a scheme of handling public service that is the best scheme yet devised, viz, through regulated monopoly. Every time that public service goes into the field of competition, it opens up the opportunity for an increased burden upon the people, and there isn't a competitive railroad system in the country along such narrow lines as would confine it to the development of a single state where cases cannot be found to prove the truth of this statement.

Let's be decent and fair in taking hold of this problem, and when we get into that frame of mind as a people, we will see that laws are passed in Massachusetts that will be as fair and as open in dealing with existing companies as some of our action has been in welcoming strange railroad gods of whom we know nothing. Give to the present railroad systems of Massachusetts liberal treatment in the matter of proper financing, and in the matter of legislative encouragement and we need not fear about the development of the port of Boston or improved business along all lines where existing railroads are serving the public.

Some Pretty Bad Local Service

A communication in the Phillipian has so much of public interest in it, we cannot refrain from quoting it in full. Clear as is its analysis of the situation on the hill, we are of the opinion that had the writer felt no restraint at all because of his long association with Phillips, he would have gone a great deal farther in his criticism of many things connected with the Exeter game in Andover last Saturday.

The Townsman has no particular interest in the management of the game itself, for that is entirely in the hands of the Phillips authorities who will probably welcome suggestions and criticisms, particularly if they come from old Phillips boys who must naturally have a personal interest in everything that pertains to the Academy. We cannot refrain, however, from saying a word about the criticism on the police, a criticism that is hardly more than a suggestion, when taken in connection with many other incidents that happened during the day and night, not creditable to the public service of Andover. The time is very close at hand when we have got to wake up here in Andover and appreciate that a good many things connected with our public service are about ready for a sharp stick. We have referred to the police several times during the past year, and there is not lacking weekly evidence to prove that our criticisms have been mild rather than harsh in their extent. If some of the stories told are true about the actions of the police in connection with the game of Saturday, the course for the Selectmen to follow is as clear as noonday, and unless the Selectmen can get evidence that no one else has been able to secure, the sooner Andover reorganizes her police force, the better the town will be.

Nothing could be sillier than the charge that has been made that the police were not paid for their special services at the last game. We had assumed where crowds are gathered together in such numbers as they were Saturday, there was the work for the police force at the expense of the town itself. The question of policing within the grounds is an entirely different matter, a matter in this particular case that is for the adjustment of the Phillips Academy authorities and no one else. When visitors come to a supposedly law-abiding town like Andover and leave automobiles in the street, or gather in numbers at the railroad station, and along the highways, they have a right to expect such protection as will let them feel secure in the property they have with them. So far as we can learn, men and women under these conditions last Saturday were anything but secure. The situation is a disgrace to the town and one that demands immediate attention on the part of the Selectmen.

Editorial Cinders

By all means let the Governor's Council confirm Norman White as Chairman of the State Finance Commission. The Governor's announced purpose in the creation of this commission was to get after the various commissions and improve the business efficiency of these many different departments of the Commonwealth's activity. Some people have believed that he has wished to do this because he loves the excitement of making changes, and no man in the Commonwealth is better fitted to "rip them up the back" than the Brookline hair trigger politician who is probably by this time a first class Democrat, having passed through the various stages of Republicanism, Insurgency, and Bull Mooseism. There is nobody in the state, temperamentally and physically better equipped to set the entire business administration of the Commonwealth by the ears than is "Noisy Norman, the Conqueror" from Brookline. Confirm him, Honorable Council, and start the merry war without delay. And, by the way, "Noisy Norman" deserves something for his first aid to democracy so finely given for the past two years.

Andover has had a distinction during the past week not fully appreciated by some of the outsiders, who have been uninformed upon the importance of the gathering here in town in connection with the anniversary meeting of the Women's Board of Missions. So far as can be learned, no small town has ever before had the distinction of entertaining this important organization, and it was a good deal of an undertaking for the Andover ladies to make. But the cordial appreciation, evidenced on all sides, of the manner in which delegates have been entertained and services conducted, would seem to indicate that the Andover ladies have been equal to the task. The Townsman gives considerable space to the events of the week, not only because of the widespread interest of our own people, but because many of the visitors here have expressed a desire to have the record made.

The Exeter game was the same old story. Trained to the minute, inspired to win by past victories and present leadership, Andover showed that she was still invincible in her class. The Townsman again congratulates the Academy and the officials who have so successfully held to the best athletic ideals, while they have at the same time been developing a winning athletic team.

"GUARDING THE PEACE"

Notable Lack of Police Protection Characterized Events of Last Saturday

The rather serious absence of police protection which can generally be noted on practically all public occasions in Andover, was so conspicuous last Saturday during the Andover-Exeter game, and throughout the late afternoon and evening, that it has been the cause of quite a little comment around town in the last few days.

People who were fortunate enough to get to Brothers Field half an hour before the game was called, perhaps had no appreciable difficulty in getting into the held and finding their seats; there were many others however, arriving between 1.45 and 2 o'clock, who were forced to form a part, not of the famous flying wedge, but of a very slow moving one whose objective point was the narrow gateway leading to the stands. The one officer who was stationed at the Highland Road gate was entirely unable to control the situation and as a result many persons in the crowd, especially women, suffered much personal discomfort.

It had been announced that automobiles parked free of charge on the Salem Street campus could be left by their owners in safety but here again the one policeman having this matter in charge, and being compelled to look after the very large number of machines was very insufficient protection. As a consequence, many articles, such as banners, robes, lamps, etc., were stolen from the automobiles during the afternoon.

The situation at the railroad station immediately after the game when some 5000 people were crowded together there waiting for trains was also a serious one. There was a great display of rudeness and violence to which was added the effective work of several pickpockets, who successfully rifled the pockets of several persons. It was reported that one man in the crowd was robbed of $75. No officer was on duty at the station, and the railroad employees were of course unable to include with their other regular duties the protection of the patrons of the road which should have been cared for by the police.

On the way to the station someone in the crowd threw a stone at the new Capitol Cafe on Essex street, the missile going through one of the windows and smashing a mirror inside, which cost about $30.

Late Saturday night, a disturbance broke out near the lunch cart on Essex street, in which a young fellow later giving the name of John Daly, of the River Road, was endeavoring to start a quarrel with another local young man. About ten minutes of noise and profanity passed before the police interfered and arrested Daly. He was later fined $5.00. He stated that he had been working for Shattuck Brothers on the River Road. Another row in the square at about midnight added another sample of Saturdays disturbances, not looked after by any "guardians of the Peace".

Recount of Votes

On petition of the Democratic candidates for the offices of Attorney-General, State Treasurer, and State Auditor, a recount of votes cast in Andover at the recent election was made on Wednesday evening before the Board of Registrars. The Democratic candidates were represented by William C. Crowley, of the Democratic town committee; the Republican and Progressive candidates had no representatives.

But few changes resulted from the recount. The vote for Treasurer was found to be as follows:

	1st count	2nd count
S. Coeur, D.	296	294
Stevens, R.	500	501
Keith, P.	239	240

No change was found in the vote for the other offices.

Adelphi Orchestra Dance

The Adelphi Orchestra an organization recently formed, held its first dancing party in A. O. U. W. hall last Friday evening, with about fifty couples in attendance. Excellent music was furnished by the orchestra and dancing was enjoyed until a late hour. G. Roderick Cannon acted as floor director.

Among those present were Philip Hardy, Everett Collins, Roland Lindsay, Edmund Hammond, Wm. Brown Clifford Knowles, Carl Lindsay, Fred Cheever, Gerald D'Arcy, Guy Bickell, William MacCreadie, Dudley Lindsay; Misses Beatrice Temple, Ruth Temple, Mary Erving, Alma Fletcher, Helen Bailey, Fannie Erving, Gertrude Clark, Anne Gillen, Cynthia Flint, Sadie Abbott.

The Adelphi Orchestra is composed of Stanley Pratt, cornet, manager; Austin F. Hitchcock, piano; William Miller, drums; Edward Foster, cornet, and Julius Hackett, violin. It is intended to run a series of dances throughout the winter, ending with a masquerade party.

SUCCESSFUL CONVENTION OF WOMAN'S BOARD

Forty-fifth Annual Meeting Held in Andover Largely Attended. Many Able Speakers Tell of Missionary Progress.

With the largely attended meeting held yesterday afternoon came to a close the forty-fifth annual meeting of the Woman's Board of Missions which has been in session for three days in Andover. The convention proved to be the largest and most successful that has been held for several years; about 250 regularly appointed delegates have been present, and in addition many hundreds of visitors and friends from all parts of the state and country who are interested in the missionary work being carried on. Able and inspiring addresses have been made by the officials of the Board, officers of the various branches, and by missionaries fresh from their labors in the mission stations of India, Turkey, China, South Africa, and other foreign lands. The sessions throughout have been of marked interest, ably directed by the president of the Board, Mrs. Charles H. Daniels.

A large number of the delegates Mrs. President, officers of the Woman's Board of Missions, delegates to the convention, and friends: I represent today a voice, not of one crying in the wilderness but to interpret to you the waves of sound that surge about Andover Hill. Turn toward the Land of Memory. As an old time shay rolls out toward Bradford hear the earnest talk of Drs. Spring and Worcester as they project the first plans for the American Board. Listen to the quill of Adoniram Judson as he writes this letter: "I have now to ask whether you can consent to part with your daughter early next Spring, to see her no more in this world, whether you can consent to her departure to a heathen land, and her subjections to the hardships and sufferings of a missionary life, whether you can consent to her exposure to the dangers of the ocean; to the fatal influences of the southern climate of India; to every kind of want and distress: to their youth in careful preparation for missionary work in Turkey, China, Japan, Africa. Turn to the left, to hear a great chorus of 248 missionaries once students in the Seminary, Judson, Newell, Rice, Gordon Hall, Dr. Dwight, Schaffner, Riggs, Blodgett. Or whose faltering English do we now hear? The runaway from Japan studying here and destined to found the great Doshisha, Neesima. Visit the peaceful cemetery where the stones speak of the virtues of our dead and the shadow of the cross of Harriet Beecher Stowe each day travels from west to east: cross to the Bowlder by Rabbit's Pond where the early missionaries used to meet to pray. Later a theological student first pens the familiar lines: "I love thy rocks and rills Thy woods and templed hills My heart with rapture thrills Like that above." All these and a countless multitude of other days call to you to arrived on Tuesday morning and were met at the station by members of the Courteous Circle of King's Daughters. Under the direction of the Hospitality Committee those coming from a distance were assigned to various homes in the town where they were entertained over night.

At two o'clock on Tuesday afternoon a meeting of the regular delegates was held at the South church, which served as a preliminary service for the regular sessions to follow. The year's record among the branches was outlined and the imperative need emphasized of expansion through a renewal of activity in organization, an enlargement of financial resources and by means of educational methods. During the evening sectional conferences were also held.

Wednesday Morning Session

On Wednesday morning, following a devotional meeting led by Miss Mary Alice Abbot, the general session opened at ten o'clock with a hymn; scriptural reading and prayer by Rev. F. A. Wilson of the Free church. Mrs. E. Y. Hincks, president of the Andover and Woburn Branch, then extended a very cordial and hearty welcome to the delegates. She said in part as follows:

degradation, insult, persecution, and perhaps a violent death? Can you consent to all this for the sake of Him who left his Heavenly home and died for her and for you: for the sake of perishing and immortal souls: for the sake of Zion and the glory of God? Can you consent to all this, in hope of soon meeting your daughter in the world of glory, with a crown of righteousness brightened by the acclamations of praise which shall rebound to her Saviour from heathens saved, through her means, from eternal woe and despair?

Note the happy faces of Anne Hazeltine and Harriet Newell, the lovely brides who were so soon to join the choir invisible, whose music is the gladness of the world. Hear the superb voices of Asa Thurston and Hiram Bingham from their perch in the old oak still standing behind the seminary, as their songs at sunset roll over the valley heard it is said on the road to West Parish. These voices seem now to come back mingled with thousands of others as they are heard through the beating of the surf on the Sandwich Islands.

Turn to the right and see the procession of young girls from Abbot Academy, 37, including the Hamblins, Mrs. Pettet, Jean Jilson, Fanny Gordon Bartlett, who there have passed carry forward the torch of love which they have borne so bravely even as one lamp lights another and still is nothing less, so nobleness enkindleth nobleness.

But the present also speaks. Above the whirl of the spindles in those cities of industry, Lawrence and Lowell, from the peaceful battlefield of Lexington, from Wakefield, Woburn and Winchester, 15 miles away, receive a cordial welcome from every auxiliary of Andover and Woburn Branch. Every home in Andover, that has a prophets chamber offers it to you. Not Andover alone, but all the Branch gives you in the language of yesterday's speaker "a right smart welcome."

The next hour was taken up with the report of the treasurer of the Board, Miss Sarah Louise Day, as to the condition of the finances. The receipts for the year just closed were as follows: Contributions, $149,705.97; legacies, $31,749.48; interest, $5,154.79; total, $186,610.24. The expenditures were: For missionary work, $163,718.45; administration expenses, $12,399.24; expenses of publications, $3,677.20; total, $179,794.89.

The Home Secretary, Miss E. Harriet Stanwood, then made a re-

THE K. OF C. BALL

Annual Hayseed Carnival Held with Great Success in Town Hall

The town hall has been the scene of many a pretty dancing party, of numerous pageants and carnivals, but for out and out frolics, nothing has ever yet equalled the Hayseed Carnival so successfully held under the auspices of Andover council, K. of C. last Friday evening. For large attendance and thoroughly enjoyable the ball entirely surpassed all other dances which have been conducted in the past by this organization. No effort had been spared to make the evening a success, and no small credit should be given to the efficient committee in charge. About 400 persons were present either viewing the fun or taking active part. Many of the young people were in costume, and much of the merriment of the evening came over the awarding of the prizes for the best-dressed girl and the best-dressed man. The first honor fell to Miss Adeline McCarthy of Lawrence, the prize being, very appropriately enough, a chicken. A similar award was made to Walter Morrissey, who, in the opinion of the judges, had the best costume among the men. The grand march, led by J. Francis Maroney and his sister, Miss Mary Maroney, consisted of about fifty couples arrayed in all sorts and kinds of garb, and their marchings to and fro through the corn stacks with which the hall was decorated was one of the features of the evening. Music for the march was furnished by thirty pieces of St. Mary's Cadet Drum Corps of Lawrence.

Dancing followed the grand march, the Columbian orchestra playing for the dancers. Those in charge of the affair were as follows: Boss Hayseeds: Chief Hayseed, Josh Maroney; selectmen, Hezekiah Carroll, Seth McDonald, Bud O'Connor; deacon, Hiram Morrissey; town cop, Hinkley Casey; village belle, Sunbonnet Sue; town cut-up, Jed Curran; keeper of round, Doc Crowley; farm hands, Hank Dudley, Zeke Daly; rubes, James H. Green, L. J. Hannon, J. F. Keefe, M. J. Crowley, J. C. Collins, William Collins.

Auto and Team Collide

A horse and wagon owned by the James H. Clifford estate of Lawrence ran into an automobile owned by a Mr. Thompson of Boston on North Main street on Tuesday afternoon, with the result that Mrs. Thompson, who was riding in the machine, received injuries on her shoulder, and the horse sustained a broken leg which necessitated the shooting of the animal.

The team, which is used by house painters, was coming down from the driveway of the Curran and Joyce residence when the automobile approached. Neither driver saw the other vehicle until it was too late. Thomas Finnegan, who was driving the horse was hurled from his seat and his load of paint supplies scattered over the road. The wagon was also badly damaged.

MISSIONARY CONVENTION

part of the work which has been done by the Home Department. She touched upon the growing responsibility of the local branches, the growth in the Young People's work, and enumerated the missionaries who are now at home on furlough, those who have returned to service, and those who have been newly appointed.

A bright and interesting dialogue between two of the ladies entitled an interview between Mrs. Extra Effort and Mrs. Old Way, which followed, brought out some of the methods which can be employed to increase the efficiency and usefulness of missionary classes and societies, as well as some of the too common ruts into which a society can fall, to the detriment of its work.

Two very interesting and vital addresses, full of personal experiences and observations then followed, the first on "Medical Work in Madras," by Dr. Harriet E. Parker of Madras, India, and the second, a story of work in Ahmednagar, by Miss Edith Gates, also of India. Miss Gates, who went to India in 1905, is the daughter of missionary parents. She spoke in part as follows:

"The Ahmednagar school for girls was one of the first in India. For some years 250 girls were housed in quarters where sixty would have been a crowd, and there was little equipment. Today they have two new dormitories, primary, industrial, and high school buildings. They are not elegant or impressive, but are just one story and one room deep. The walls are whitewashed and the floors paved with stone to keep the white ants from working up through the floors and eating up all the books, chairs and desks. The dormitory for the 125 older girls contains just six rooms, all bare, save for a cupboard set into the wall to hold the girls' books and plates.

"At the beginning only the low caste people would allow their daughters to be taught and the girls had to be begged to come. Now they need no urging, and every parent is expected to pay something for his daughter's education. The amounts they pay vary from eight cents to one dollar a month according to circumstances. The girls go out from this school to be doctors, nurses, pastors' wives, Bible women and home-makers. The industrial school aims to teach the girl something she can do in her own home, helps the young widow or unmarried girl to earn a living, and educates the ideas of the people with regard to manual work. Meals are eaten out of doors under the shade of trees or by the side of the house. They sleep out of doors except in the rainy season. They wash their clothes, which need no ironing, by spanking them hard on large, flat stones. Marriages often take place with no previous engagement and with only a day's warning. An hour or less is long enough to prepare the bride's trousseau, which besides the regular sari and tiny jacket, includes a string of black beads and six or eight green bangles. The bride carries no bouquet but the groom wears one in his turban."

A speaker not announced on the program, but one who was heartily welcomed, not alone because of the valuable work she is now conducting, but also because of the many years of intimate association with Abbot Academy and Andover, was Miss Mahelle E. Boshier who is at present in charge of mission work in Honolulu, Hawaii. Miss Boshier is at home on a year's furlough and is staying during that time in Manchester, N. H. Her nearness to Andover makes it possible for her to renew many of her former friendships here and to share again actively in Andover interests. She spoke before the convention but a few moments, but during that time she gave an outline of the work in Honolulu and told of the great need of a mission teacher there.

During the noon recess a dinner was served by Caterer Rhodes at the Free church to about 500 of the delegates. Other visitors from out of town, bringing lunches and desiring to remain for the afternoon session, were accommodated very comfortably at the Parish House of Christ church, where hot coffee was served, and provision made for all comers. Supper on Wednesday night and dinner on Thursday were also served at the Free church.

Abbot Academy Buildings

Wednesday Afternoon Session

The afternoon session began at two o'clock, the first speaker being Mrs. R. S. M. Emrich of Mardin, Turkey. A very earnest and enthusiastic speaker, Mrs. Emrich held her audience for more than half an hour with her interesting description of the country in which she has been for several years engaged as a missionary, of the lack of teachers and facilities for carrying on the great work of civilizing and Christianizing them. She referred also to the serious situation now confronting Turkey and its possible effect on mission work. Mrs. Emrich's work is directly concerned with Mesopotamia, and she confined herself almost entirely to the conditions existing there.

The next speaker was one who is widely known throughout the country in connection with Sunday School work. No matter what the audience, they always accord a hearty welcome to Miss Margaret Slattery, and Wednesday afternoon was no exception to the rule. Miss Slattery took as her subject, "A Grain of Mustard Seed," and in her usual characteristic manner showed how every woman possesses a grain of mustard seed, which it is her duty to plant and care for until it grows and bears fruit. Using this as an illustration she impressed upon her hearers the necessity for the cultivation of the talents and capabilities of which everyone is possessed to a greater or less extent. Her anecdotes, bringing out characteristic traits of human nature, were much appreciated by the audience who listened to her with keen attention.

The next number on the program was a solo, "The Publican," by Van de Water, excellently rendered by J. Everett Collins, accompanied by Frederic G. Moore on the organ.

The singing was followed by an sides the younger delegates and many young women of the town.

The meeting was in charge of Miss Mary Prescott, head of the Junior work of the Woman's Board, who, after an introductory service of hymns, scripture and prayer, outlined some of the work of her department. A chorus of the Bradford girls then rendered Kipling's Recessional in a very pleasing manner.

The next number on the program was a charming little three-act play given by some of the Abbot students, entitled "Slave Girl and School Girl." It gave an interesting glimpse into the home life of the Chinese and some of the customs of that land which are now happily dying out.

buildings which at the Board's fiftieth celebration in 1917 shall amount to $250,000. This includes all gifts from the living which shall have been made and appropriated for buildings during the interval and which, together with what then may be in hand for this purpose may amount to a total of $250,000.

"Medical Work in Foochow," was the title of the next address made by Dr. Kate C. Woodhull, who together with her sister, Miss Hannah Woodhull, were among the prominent missionaries present. As a result of her personal experience in China, Dr. Woodhull was able to give a vivid picture of conditions among the Chinese women and the necessity for further and more widespread work among them. Miss Isabel M. Blake of Aintab, Turkey, then gave an address on "Enlarging Circles of Influence," speaking in part as follows:

"The growth of the Aintab Girls' School both in point of view of numbers and breadth of influence has been remarkable. Pupils from many different classes are coming to us. The influence of our alumnae, at work in the home, in schools, in musical circles and in social work is marked. More and more they are able to reach out and influence a teacher, a physical director, builder, architect, soloist, nurse, or lecturer, on short notice, and she must stand ready to do her best to draw forth from her available resources of education, experience and courage what results she may." Many interesting anecdotes from her personal experiences helped to make her talk a very entertaining one.

women of all classes and races, and are assuming the responsibility for the enlightenment of all the womanhood of Turkey."

The last address of the morning was given by Mrs. Charles N. Ransom of Adams, South Africa. Born in Syria, the daughter of Rev. Simon H. Calhoun, D.D., she lived all her childhood in missionary environment. For the last twenty-two years, since her marriage of Mr. Ransom, she has been connected with the Zulu mission, prominently associated with educational work. Her subject, "From Zulu Kraal to Christian School," was fruitful in suggestion and interesting in detail. She brought special messages of greeting from the pastor, deacons and women of the church at Amanzimtoti, from the girls of the schools, and the missionaries—messages of thanks for what the people here have done for them. She paid tribute to Mrs. Edwards, the first missionary adopted by the Woman's Board, still at her post in Inanda, with grateful recognition of the services of the others stationed there. Yet these are not enough, and Mrs. Ransom begged for more helpers.

The remainder of the morning session was given over to business, the election of officers for the coming year taking place as follows:

President, Mrs. Charles H. Daniels.
First vice-president, Mrs. A. A. Finch.
Vice-presidents, Mrs. N. G. Clark, Mrs. E. E. Strong, Mrs. J. L. Barton, Miss Susan Hayes Ward.

Corresponding secretary, Mrs. J. E. Strong.

address by Miss Kate G. Lamson, the Foreign Secretary of the Board, who summed up her experiences on the mission fields which she visited during the past year, using for the title of her remarks, "The Nature of Our Tasks." She spoke of the development of the womanhood of these lands as the great responsibility of the Board. This must be done by lifting them for the home life, which in most cases will be their portion, and the creating in them of a thirst for education. She also pointed out the difficulty of properly reaching the mind blunted by long contact with heathenism, also the necessity of industrial training for those who by becoming converts to Christianity are outcasts from their families.

The last speaker of the afternoon was Mrs. W. O. Ballantine of Rahuri, India, who related in an interesting manner her work at Rahuri, describing the lives of the people and outlining their future as influenced by the missionary work which is being done among them.

Young People's Meeting

The young people's meeting at Abbot Academy on Wednesday evening was so largely attended that an overflow gathering had to be held, the same program being carried out at both services. A large delegation of Bradford Academy students, as well as Abbot girls, were present be-

Her place will be taken by Miss Helen Calder.

Thursday Afternoon Session

At the afternoon session Miss Emily R. Bissell of Ahmednagar, India, told the story of the Brahman widow, the woman who because her husband has died is forced to undergo all sorts of suffering and degradation.

Rev. Enoch F. Bell, associate secretary of the American Board, spoke on the subject, "Inspiration From Achievement." An abstract from his address follows:

"There is no better place in the world to gain inspiration from achievement than Andover, the mother of missionaries. From this hill have gone forth educators, statesmen, as well as ministers in the work of spreading Christian truth and influence throughout the world, and none have done greater and more permanent work than the women who were either born or trained here, and who have gone forth under the American Board, supported by the Woman's Board. This is particularly true of the women who have labored in Japan—the country of countries to call Andover 'blessed.'"

What would Japan have done for the education of women had it not been for the stimulating influence of the missionary and her Christian schools? This is not the time, however, for self adulation. The achievement of the past should be the mother of activity for the present and future. The last speaker was Miss Alice Brown of Peking, who spoke on "Expansion in China." Among other things she said:

"In all the astonishing expansion of China in things material and political, there is also an expansion in ideas and ideals which makes the moment a crucial one."

"There is a tide in the affairs of men" which is now seemingly nearing its height in China, and there should be a corresponding enlarging of our hearts, a new expansion of sympathy and loyalty to meet the matchless opportunities, to answer the many calls to us American Christian women now, in China, for true Christian service."

The meeting was concluded by the singing of a hymn by Rev. Enoch F. Bell.

Pilgrimage to Missionary Bowlder

On Tuesday afternoon, after the first meeting of the Woman's Board of Missions, a company of about 50 delegates visited the Missionary Bowlder at Rabbit Rock. Just as the dusk was beginning to deepen, a short but wonderfully impressive service was held on the spot so full of missionary associations and where the pioneers in the movement for carrying the Gospel to heathen lands met to talk over their plans over 100 years ago. Prayer was offered by Rev. E. Y. Hincks and those present joined in singing the hymn, "The Morning Light is Breaking."

Inclement weather on Wednesday and Thursday prevented many of the visitors from seeing many of the interesting and historic places in the town of which a list had been prepared for the use of the delegates, but some were able to visit parts of the Hill.

The pilgrimage to the Bowlder scheduled for Wednesday afternoon had to be omitted.

Among the many pleasant features of the meeting of the Woman's Board of Missions which has been held here this week, was the hearty co-operation shown by all the ladies of the local churches, individually and as parts of their various societies to make the visit of the two hundred and fifty delegates here a pleasant one.

Although the South Church was the headquarters of the delegates, and the ladies of that church did no small share in the work of planning for the welfare of the visitors, nevertheless they were by no means single handed, for all the other Protestant churches in the town gave unsparingly of time and assistance to aid in the work. The ladies of the Free Church especially helped in making the 500 people who had to be accommodated at dinner and supper during the three days. The hospitality of those who opened their homes to the delegates for entertainment over night was also a prominent feature in the whole, and much credit is to be given to the women of the town generally for the manner in which they have stood by the general committees and assisted in making the convention the success it was from the local standpoint.

SOCCER

Andover United travelled to Lowell on Saturday last to play the Anting in their league game. Owing to injuries Doig was unable to play but McConachie, a new man, substituted in a very creditable manner. Andover had the best of the game throughout but the work of Bertwhistle, late of Methuen, who gave a brilliant exhibition of goal keeping kept Andover's score below what it would have been. As it was, Andover won their fourth straight game by a score of 3 to 2, and took third place in the league standing.

The Andover Thistles met the Olympic Juniors on the home ground last Saturday in their return game. The Olympics were the winners by the score of 3 to 2 at the last meeting but the Thistles wiped off the defeat to the tune of 5 goals to 1. Carnathan scored for the Thistles after 15 minutes play and added another, five minutes later. Half time score, Thistles 2, Juniors 0. The Juniors pressed at the opening of the second half, Anderson and Lowe saved well. Eldred passed to Harrison who put in a fine shot and scored the Junior's first and only goal. The Thistles scored 3 more, 1 by Caldwell and 2 by Carnathan. Frank McBride referred the game to the satisfaction of all. Full time score; Thistles 5, Juniors 1.

Want Game Here

The Lawrence, Lowell and District soccer league has gotten itself into another tangle, and the delegates are at odds with each other as the result of a special meeting Wednesday night when by a vote of 5 to 4 it was decided to transfer the playing of the International game on Thanksgiving Day from Andover to Glen Forest. Notice was given Wednesday night, however, that another meeting would be held next Sunday afternoon to reconsider this action.

Vice-President William Pangburn presided at Wednesday night's meeting in the absence of the president, and the Manchester clubs were not represented. In calling the meeting to order Vice-President Pangburn stated that in his opinion the meeting was illegal, because all the clubs were not notified, and he said that whatever business was transacted could not be legal according to the by-laws of the league.

Andover originally offered the use of their grounds when the league was in difficulties, Glen Forest being unavailable because of poor street car service. The league accepted Andover's offer and local fans feel that the game should be played here.

A lengthy discussion was held, and the delegates finally decided to go ahead with their business, and the matter of transferring the international from Andover, where it was originally voted to play it, was taken up. Those in favor of the delegates argued that accommodations would be better if the game were played at Glen Forest and that the financial gain would be greater, and others contended that the league should stand by its word and play the game in Andover.

A vote was finally taken and it resulted in five delegates being in favor of playing the game at Glen Forest and four opposed, and the vote to transfer was declared and carried.

ANDOVER NEWS

Death of Mrs. Platner

Many readers of the Townsman have learned with deep regret of the death at Cambridge on the 7th instant of Mrs. Emily Childs Platner, mother of Professor John Winthrop Platner of Andover Seminary.

Coming to Andover in 1901, Professor Platner was assigned the house built for the late Professor J. W. Churchill in 1882, and now occupied by Mr. Lynde of the Academy, and there from the former year until 1908, the date of the removal of the Seminary to Cambridge, Mrs. Platner, as lady of the house, dispensed a gracious hospitality. A person of unusual mental originality and vigor, and of marked force of character, she maintained the best traditions of the life of "Old Andover."

Possessing strong religious convictions, she was free from the intolerance with which such convictions are often associated, and the humor in which the Puritan character is often thought to be deficient was hers in abundant measure. She found in Andover a congenial home and left it with much regret.

Those Andover friends whose esteem and affection followed her to Cambridge are glad to remember that she lived with unclouded faculties, an "Old age serene and bright."

And lovely as a Lapland night," until at eighty-four, after a brief illness she fell asleep.

Fair and Entertainment

The annual fair and entertainment of the Congregational Ladies' Aid society held Friday evening in Bradlee hall was a successful affair. The tables were very prettily decorated and were under the care of the following named ladies:

Candy table: Mrs. A. B. Loomer and Miss Martha Byington. Apron table: Mrs. G. R. Miller and Mrs. William Clemons. Fancy work: Mrs. Frank Juhlman and Miss Rubina Copeland. Home bakery: Mrs. B. Stafford and Miss Mary Browne. Mystery: Miss Sadie M. Kent and Mrs. N. L. Harwood. Peanut: Miss Alice Mears and Miss Dorothy Shattuck. Ice Cream: Messrs. Arthur Mears, Robert Stafford and Wesley Clarke, Miss Rosalie Wood and Miss Agnes Cummings.

The entertainment was greatly appreciated by the large audience. The program was as follows: Vocal solo, Mrs. Edward York; song, Conson Jedediah and the village chorus, composed of the following named ladies and gentlemen, Eldon Fleury, Holmes Bates, Mr. Ferguson, Wesley Clarke, Robert Stafford, Frank Juhlman, Arthur Mears, Mrs. Eldon Fleury, Mrs. Edward York, Mrs. George Miller, Mrs. Frank Juhlman, Misses Carrie French, Isabelle Miller, Flossie Wood and Alice Davis.

The fair was a financial success.

THE WORD HELL.

A Little Book That Contains Some Startling Information.

A little book selling at only five cents, postpaid, is having a very wide circulation—running up into the millions. It contains some very startling information respecting the meaning of the word Hell. It claims to demonstrate, both from the Hebrew and the Greek of our Bible, that Hell is NOT a place of eternal torment, but merely another name for the TOMB, the GRAVE, the STATE OF DEATH. It affects to show that man was not redeemed from a far-off place of eternal torture, but quotes the Scriptures proving that he was REDEEMED from the GRAVE at the cost of his Redeemer's LIFE and that the Scriptural Hope, both for the Church and the World, is a resurrection hope based upon the death and resurrection of Jesus. The book is certainly worth the reading. The information it furnishes is certainly valuable, far beyond its trifling cost. Order it at once from the Bible and Tract Society, 17 Hicks Street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Communication

The following communication was published in Wednesday's issue of the Phillippian and is of interest to Andover patrons of the Exeter games.

Editor, The Phillippian,

Dear Sir:
I had the good fortune to attend the Andover vs. Exeter game last Saturday and was delighted to see the well played game and the splendid victory won by Andover. Incidentally it was very pleasing to see the good feeling shown by the two schools even in face of the fact that Exeter has been steadily losing for so many years.

In the hope that a suggestion may bear some fruit two years from now, I want to protest most vigorously against the entirely inadequate arrangements for admitting the crowd at the gateway between the two large oaks. With a party of four, I arrived at about ten minutes before two and the crowd was then lined up some thirty feet back from the gateway, but it took over ten minutes to go that distance and in doing that the progress was more like the old cane rushes which we had on the lower campus in my days than any crowd I have been in for a long time. With the crowd converging toward the two narrow entrances it could hardly be otherwise. Furthermore, the guard rails on either side of the ticket taker in the centre of the entrance way were left unprotected so that people were constantly being pushed against the square cornered ends of these at great risk of personal injury.

Instead of a narrow gateway like this there should be room for at least six or eight people to pass through simultaneously and thus avoid torn skirts, twisted arms and display of bad temper by nearly every one caught this way. I hope this suggestion will not be forgotten two years hence.

Another suggestion for the public welfare would be to have a larger police force to take care of the parking of automobiles, or else have an arrangement to charge for them. Saturday there was apparently only one policeman in charge of the whole army of machines that were parked on the gymnasium lot, and while I was fortunate enough not to lose anything from my car, a friend lost one or two articles from his, while at the baseball game in June he was robbed of the electric lights on his car.

However, Andover is a pretty good place and we are all glad to get back there at every opportunity, especially when Exeter is also visiting.

Yours truly,
P. A. '91

A Grandson of Andover

Among the many visitors of the past week, although independent of the Women's Missionary Convention, were Rev. William Brewster Humphrey and wife of New York City. Mr. Humphrey is the son of Rev. Dr. Simon J. Humphrey, a Seminary classmate of Rev. William L. Ropes, 1852, and a well-known American Board secretary in Chicago in past years. They had been at Derry, N. H., Dr. Humphrey's birthplace, and stopped off at Andover to visit the early home of his mother, Elizabeth Emerson, daughter of Prof. Ralph Emerson, so long of Andover Seminary, whose residence was the "Smyth house," now occupied by Treasurer Sawyer. It was very interesting for him to be among the scenes of his mother's childhood home. She is still living in Oak Park, Ill. She was a graduate of Abbot Academy in 1856, a class which included, according to the old catalogue, Mary P. Hazen, Emma E. Newman, Helen E. Abbott (Hitchcock), Martha B. Barrows (Hitchcock), Ellen A. Berry (Peabody), Sarah E. Burr, Mary A. Dove (Johnson), Hannah A. Harding (Flint), Sarah P. Lamson (Scudder), Emma M. E. Sanborn, Mary Tyler (Fiske), Frances R. Shattuck (Beard), and others. Most of these names will be pleasantly remembered by the older readers of the Townsman.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

[From a series of elaborate chemical tests.]

Comparative digestibility of food made with different baking powders.

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of two kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

Bread made with Royal Cream of Tartar Powder:

99 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with alum powder:

67 Per Cent. Digested

Royal Baking Powder raised food is shown to be of greatly superior digestibility and healthfulness.
